FREDERICK COUNTY HISTORICAL & CULTURAL RESOURCES: TIME TO DO MORE?

A Public Meeting for an Open Discussion of the County's Historic Preservation Program

When: January 31, 2019, 7:00 PM
Where: Winchester Hall, 12 East Church Street, 1st Floor Hearing Room
Featured Speaker: Ian Milliken, Archaeologist, Pima County, Arizona, Historic Preservation Program
Sponsor: Frederick County Historic Preservation Commission

FREDERICK, MD -- On Thursday, January 31st, at 7 p.m., Frederick County residents will have an opportunity to hear Ian Milliken, staff archaeologist for the Pima County, Arizona, Planning Department, describe his county's preservation program, which has been acclaimed for its effectiveness, public engagement, and preservation outcomes.

His talk will be followed by a panel discussion that will focus on the needs of Frederick County as it completes its Livable Frederick Master Plan, a long-term strategic document that includes consideration for the conservation of historical, natural, and cultural resources.

It is critical for preservationists, historians, archaeologists, and all interested residents to attend this meeting to learn about potential steps Frederick County may consider, and to share experiences and expertise related to local heritage. The audience will be given an opportunity to ask questions and suggest actions.

Please attend this meeting to show your support for Frederick County's cultural resources and historic preservation programs. Feel free to contact Denis Superczynski of the Frederick County Division of Planning & Permitting with any questions.

Mr. Superczynski can be reached at 301-600-1142, or via e-mail at:
