Division Prepares New, Expanded Resource Guide for Community Services

FREDERICK, Md. – The Frederick County Division of Aging and Independence, formerly known as the Senior Services Division, is pleased to announce that the preparation of the “Blue Book” Resource Guide is underway. For the first time, the division is hiring a vendor to produce this guide through a Request for Quotes. The resource guide will be printed in English and Spanish.

The County Resource Guide has been a consistent and valuable publication about services pertaining to the challenges, interests and needs of older adults, persons with disabilities, caregivers and veterans. “This year, the resource guide is being expanded to serve the broader and growing needs of the County,” said Kathryn Schey, Director of the Division of Aging and Independence. “By expanding our guide to include more resources for the populations we serve, we expand the possible solutions that are available to assist individuals in meeting their specific goals. In addition, our name change reflects the changing and growing needs of the community that span beyond our older community members and include veterans and persons with disabilities.”
